General information regarding deductibility of contributions

Provided are general rules regarding charitable contributions to assist you in determining the amount of tax deductions you might receive. Generally, contributions of money and property made to the Polish – American Medical Society are deductible. A tax advisor should be consulted if you have questions regarding your personal situation.

Cash contributions

- Your deduction is generally the amount of cash payment.
- If you receive a benefit as a result of contribution, you can deduct the amount above the value of the benefit you receive.

Vacation/Rental Homes

- Donors of private vacation homes may deduct the full market value; donors of rental properties may deduct only the operations and maintenance cost for use of the home.
- Contributions with winning bids on the home may deduct the amount of the donation above the fair rental value.

Jewelry/Coin & Stamp Collections

- For deductions held more than one year, donors receive deductions equal to the fair market value.

Please remember the rules of deductibility for charitable contributions are confusing. Please refer to your tax advisor if you have questions.
